Alameda Sings! Stories of Winter

Alameda, CA USA, November 17, 2025 - Alameda Sings!, a.k.a. "Alameda Community Chorus", sings nostalgic, classic melodies during their Winter Concert "Alameda Sings! Stories of Winter". This free concert co-hosted by Alameda Recreation and Parks Department will be held on Saturday, December 13, 2025, at 7:30pm in the Alameda Veterans Memorial Building, 2203 Central Avenue in Alameda, CA. Leading the chorus is Artistic Director Barbara Acosta accompanied by the gifted pianist, Merrill Collins, composer, producer, and CEO of her Indie label, Spiraling Music. Composed of talented community singers, the chorus will take you through various winter stories and poems put to song followed by a carol sing-along at the end!

For the first time the Tap Dancing Christmas will join the Alameda Sings! Chorus as guest performers. They are a Bay Area holiday staple and Alameda Sings! is honored to have them. Returning to the Alameda Sings! chorus as guest performers are The Bay Area Music Project Children's Chorus, as well as Michael Moore on drums. The BAMP Children's Chorus is always a delightful addition to Alameda Sings! concerts and have performed with the chorus several times in the past. A local musician who you may remember from our Spring 2025 concert, Michael teaches drumming to children and adults at the Drum Lab. All our guest performers will greatly highlight the singers, the songs, and the "Stories of Winter"!

"This Winter season the chorus is singing a little something for everyone. We're presenting a variety of holiday songs that are nostalgic and tell familiar winter stories. This concert the chorus will perform with local musicians and performers that are incredibly talented in their own right. We are excited to have so many talented guest performers." – Barbara Acosta, Artistic Director, Alameda Sings!

"Alameda Sings! continues to focus on the love and need for choral education and performance opportunities. This season is no exception as once again we enhance our concert by performing and highlighting local talent. We are truly a community nonprofit welcoming partnerships, donors, and volunteers that share our desire to support pathways for Bay Area singers and musicians." – Jo Lowe, Alameda Sings!/ACC President

Alameda Community Chorus is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization that "engages the community in advancing the love of choral music through education, performance and collaboration." The Chorus offers stipend, educational, and performance opportunities for singing enthusiasts ages 16 and up. No audition is required. Enrollment to Alameda Sings! is through the Alameda Recreation and Parks Department with class sessions held at Alameda Mastick Senior Center. Enrollment through ARPD is available now for the spring session that begins January 12, 2026.

The family friendly Winter Concert has a suggested donation at the door of $10 or more. Donations help choral music thrive in our community.
